

Alligator Alley A New Road In The Old Tradition

The continuing fight to obtain a four lane State Rd. 80, between West Palm Beach and Belle Glade, where the need is growing more critical daily, was contrasted by the recent opening of possibly the most ill conceived road in the United States. Alligator Alley a two-lane toll road between Fort Lauderdale and Naples is to say the least the greatest waste of taxpayers money in recent Florida history.

For practical purposes the road serves the needs of bird watchers and fishermen far better than it does the motoring public. The road in its entire 78 mile length does not provide the motorist with a place to buy food, gas, or even toilet facilities. The road does not provide any time saving to speak of, nor is it a particularly safe road to drive.

There are three rest areas on the route, but that's a charitable term. There are no tables, no garbage cans, no telephones, no rest rooms, and no shade. Just a turnoff. Your $1.50 toll allows you to drive a two lane highway at a maximum speed of 65 miles per hour for 78 miles with the thought that at any time an emergency might arise, there is not even a telephone to call for help.

Alligator Alley is probably the only turnpike in the nation to slow traffic with a yellow blinker light. It's at the intersection with State Road 29, which leads to Immokalee and Tamiami Trail. People wishing to use Alligator Alley to drive to their fishing grounds, can enter and leave the road at this intersection and avoid the toll booths that are located at the ends of the road.

Most of Alligator Alley is bordered by canals, not as close as those bordering State Rd. 80, but much closer than they should be on a modern turnpike. Although the road accommodates commercial traffic, very few trucks appear to use it, this is certainly in contrast to the daily situation on State Rd. 80.

Why Alligator Alley was built is going to be a subject for controversy for years to come. Florida taxpayers will be called upon to drive hazardous roads while their tax dollars are wasted on unnecessary roads by inept politicians. This is a crime for which no-one is ever convicted.

The toll booths located at the east and west ends of the recently opened Alligator Alley will probably be the most interesting sights you will see on this ill conceived two lane toll road.

Pueblo Predicament

For the American people, North Korea's seizure of the intelligence — collecting ship Pueblo has been a grim reminder that the cold war is still a reality, no matter how much the "liberals" may say it is a thing of the past. A U. S. warship hijacked in international waters is an example of the piratical character of the communists.

The Pueblo incident should be seen and understood in its full dimensions. In the first place, the act was unprecedented in modern times. Not since the days of the Barbary pirates has an American vessel been boarded and captured on the high seas. Thus it was an assault on a principle cherished throughout the history of the American Republic — the principle of freedom of the seas. Twice in American history — in 1812 and in 1917 — the United States went to war to uphold this principle. In other conflicts in which the U. S. has engaged, freedom of the seas also has been a significant factor in determining American intentions.

The United States, as a great sea power and trading nation, cannot afford to give way to communist piracy on the high seas — least of all from a petty satellite of the Soviet Union. The strongest measures are justified to protect an American warship and those who sail in her.

It would be naive, however, to suppose that the seizure of the Pueblo was a hasty act on the part of the North Koreans. The Russians, who long ago installed a puppet as ruler of North Korea, certainly would not have permitted the seizure without careful thought as to the final objective of such an act. It is ridiculous to think we can get the Russians to help us out of our Pueblo predicament, when they no doubt investigated it in the first place.

Behind the seizure, one can be sure, is a plan to humiliate the United States and to present the American republic to the world as a "paper tiger." Japan attempted the same thing in the 1930s when its aircraft sank the U. S. gunboat Panay on China's Yangtze River. "Here the U. S. is supposed to be a great power," the communists in North Korea say, "and they can't protect a small patrol craft in the North Pacific."

In addition, Americans can be sure that the communists — meaning Russia as well as North Korea — wanted in this ship seizure to demonstrate their capacity to open a new front and to compel a reduction of naval forces in the waters off Vietnam. Indeed they have been successful in part of this effort, for the ship-seizure made it necessary for the U. S. to divert warships to the Korean coast.

How it is that the Pueblo came to be seized in the first place, and why American ships and aircraft did not reach the vessel before it was forced into a North Korean port, must be the subject of intensive congressional scrutiny. The public should realize, however, that in the McNamara era at the Pentagon, the uniformed commanders in the battle zones have been allowed very little authority to make decisions that in any way touch on political matters. That would not be surprising to discover that decisions such as committing U. S. fighters off the North Korean coast, under McNamara's operating rules, required the approval of Mr. McNamara's office.

However the Pueblo situation is resolved, the American people should learn from it that the struggle with communism is not lessening in seriousness. Nor is the Soviet Union mellowing. The communists believe they are in a fight to the finish. They are determined to extinguish the capitalist nations, and they intend to push ahead in their war against freedom.

The Reds have a capacity to create trouble in many parts of the world, in Korea as well as Vietnam, in Latin America as well as the Middle East. The United States must be alert to each of the present and future threats as it has dealt with the threat in Vietnam — with a vast land army. The communists have the advantage of numbers over the United States and its free world allies. The U. S. must be able to deal with communist aggression by utilizing its technological-military superiority. Awareness of this necessity is what prompts some thoughtful defense thinkers in the United States to assert that another Korean war, let us say, would make it imperative for the U. S. to use battlefield nuclear weapons to stop the aggressors. Indeed had such weapons been used in the Korean war in the early 1950s, the North Koreans and Red Chinese would have had their power blunted at that time.

The lesson of history is that victory goes to the bold and daring. If the free world fails to use its scientific and technological know-how to stop the armed hordes of communism, it may be bled to death by the modern guerrilla war version of the old oriental torture death of a thousand cuts.

LOCAL BUSINESS

It is a growing responsibility of advertising to help people with the changing problems of living.

As the Soviet Union mellowing, the communists believe they are in a fight to the finish. They are determined to extinguish the capitalist nations, and they intend to push ahead in their war against freedom.

Anticipating a society which will have an increasing amount of wealth and leisure time, some sociologists believe that "learning how to live" may become the most pressing problem of highly developed nations.

New personal services, new recreational activities, new artistic enterprises, and new consumer products will be developed and developed to serve the needs of a public which is just coming into existence. It is a characteristic of the new public that it does not fully understand its own needs. Too often increased leisure time results in boredom and dissatisfaction which may be more damaging mentally and emotionally than any kind of work. Drugs, alcohol and decay may be the lot of those who have not learned to use free time.

Even a physician said of himself: "My hardest work is forcing myself to become interested in something other than work."

Of course there are many agencies, from the Federal government to community groups, attempting to help people with leisure-time problems. Yet, private industry, through advertising, may be more effective than any other agency.

For example, water sports are one limited, exclusive group, have become stimulating activities for millions. The sports were built largely through private promotional efforts.

Similar advertising is already building new interest in music, art, literature, crafts, participant sports, and hobbies.

Fewer Casualties Listed From Firearms

TALLAHASSEE — There were fewer firearm casualties and fatal accidents in 1967 than a year previously; however, the total fatal accidents while hunting did increase. According to the official Firearm Casualty Report compiled by the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, gun accidents resulted in 266 casualties during 1967, 61 of which were fatal.

The 266 casualties, 51 of the accidents involved hunters, with 28 of the hunters being youths under 18 years of age. Ten of the accidents occurred while hunting deer, 13 while hunting small game and six while hunting animals other than game animals. No firearm casualties were associated with turkey hunting.

The Firearm Casualty Report indicated a decrease in total casualties from 1966 when 356 accidents and 80 fatalities were reported. The firearm fatalities while hunting increased from 15 in 1966 to 16 in 1967.

Hunters being mistaken for game resulted in three accidents; loading or unloading guns accounted for 17; riding with or removing guns from vehicles accounted for 27; while guns falling from rest resulted in 26 accidents.

A breakdown of the casualties indicated that shotguns resulted in 130 accidents, rifles accounted for 48, shotguns for 58, and air guns for 35. According to the report, the largest percentage of accidents occurred at home or in the yard, with a total of 136 such incidents. Most are unintentional discharge and result in self-inflicted wounds with the victim less than 10 yards from the muzzle.

Copeland added, "We would encourage all parents to require their children to have proper firearm training before giving them access to guns. The names and addresses of firearm safety instructors are available upon request to the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission."

My Uncle . . .

"Somebody stole your boat Uncle. What are you going to do about it." "Well son, I don't really think they meant to steal my boat, so I'm going to wait and see if they're going to give it back." "But I saw them take it and when I told them that it belonged to my Uncle Sam they just laughed."

Of course, the boys that stole the boat probably will never give it back, and Uncle Sam will do the same as in the past—just grin and bear it. I can remember when they put up a wall and when they stole Cuba. Uncle Sam got mad, but he didn't do anything about it. Perhaps he's getting old and can't quite remember the days when as a young man he would fight those people that would take away a man's property and rights.

It isn't easy to see this once proud man being brought to his knees by those same people who once respected him as a leader in the fight for freedom and justice. Those people that gave him support in the past are now bent on crippling him through public insurrection in the guise of civil rights. He fought long and hard to champion the cause of the minorities, only to have them turn and demand more and more or they would burn his house down.

I feel so sorry for my Uncle Sam because like a great many of the elderly, he is having trouble getting along on his income. Hardly a month goes by that he doesn't spend more than he makes. If only he'd learn to economize perhaps he could get along, but he just laughs and says that he'll balance his budget some day.

What is going to happen when Uncle Sam passes away? What will be remembered for? Certainly he has done a lot of good, and there will be those that remember the days of glory in the past, but I hate to think that he will be leaving the world to those very people he fought for if Uncle Sam isn't around to protect us who will!

Too Late to Classify

By Russell Kay

A reader writes to complain that I am continually picking on our noble politicians and bureaucrats when they are not really to blame since they are only "doing what comes natural."

He points out that the real culprits are you and me. The average Joe Citizen, whose apathy and disinterest in the welfare of the country is directly responsible for what is happening to it.

Take crime and rioting. He says the average citizen will stand by and see a fellow citizen beaten up and robbed and won't even bother to call the police. Why should he become involved, that is until it happens to him.

We contend we are for "law and order" but we accept the charges of "police brutality" as justified and look on the cops or the fuzz as worse than the criminals they try to control.

Half of us never bother to go to the polls and vote in an election. We are entirely satisfied that we have the "right" vote and see no advantage in putting ourselves out to exercise the privilege.

When our taxes are raised we scream to high heaven but we overlook the fact that the body that raised the taxes was voted in office because we failed to cast our vote or made any effort to check on their philosophy of government.

The average citizen today seems to feel that government is none of his concern. He contends that no matter who you vote for the guy will turn out to be a crook and a bum in the end so why should he concern himself on election day. It is easy, he says to blame the other guy for our own short comings. Responsibility of citizenship is something for the other guy to worry about. He should be worry when his own lousy vote wouldn't make any difference anyhow?

There was a time in this country when the average citizen was proud of his country. He would stand with head bare when the flag passed by stand when the national anthem is played, but if he does today it is because the guy next to him does, and he feels silly about the whole thing.

Mr. Joe Citizen reads of the waste and graft going on the billions of tax dollars going down the drain and makes no move to change the situation. He assumes that such actions are normal and you have to expect it. Tell him that he is responsible and he become indignant.

Ask him to write his Congressman and he says, "Nuts. I might just as well write the dog catcher for all the good it would do. Why should I stick my neck out, I might want ask the guy for a favor sometime."

Well, I must agree heartily with my critic. I admit that most of our ills today are the responsibility of the average Joe Citizen. He has become disillusioned and he is content to care anymore. He is content to accept the situation as it is until something happens to him personally, then he stands up on his hind legs and screams, "Why doesn't somebody do something?" forgetting that he was the guy who used to say, "Why should anybody?"

"I'm dead tired. Wish I could stretch out for a while."

Vows Solemnized In Candlelight Ceremony Saturday

MRS. JOSE JULIO TOMEU

In a Saturday, Feb. 3 evening ceremony in the Calvary Baptist Church in West Palm Beach, Miss Fern Ellen Henderson became the bride of Jose Julio Tomeu. The 7 p. m. candlelight rites were solemnized by the Rev. Floyd S. Henderson, grandfather of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Mead Henderson of 322 Emerson Circle, Palm Springs. Mr. Tomeu is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Enrique Tomeu of 307

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in an heirloom gown of ivory satin with sweetheart neckline, point to wrist sleeves and full skirt with train. Her heirloom veil, a cathedral length mantle of handmade Brussels lace with scalloped, embroidered border, fell from an ivory satin headpiece. She carried a cascade of glomella, white roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Her matron of honor was

All of the attendants were attired in full length, empire style gowns with bodice and short sleeves of sea green velvet and skirts of metallic brocade embroidered in shades of blue, seagreen and silver on a pale sage background. Their circular, shoulder length veils fell from sea green velvet Dior bows, and they wore short white gloves, and carried graduated bouquets of pink roses and blue baby's breath.

Martina Tomeu, niece of the bride groom was flower girl. She wore a full length, sea green velvet gown similar in style to the other attendants. Her headpiece was a smaller version of the velvet Dior bow and she wore white gloves and carried a white basket of pink rose petals.

Todd Henderson, brother of the bride was ringbearer. Enrique Tomeu was the bride's best man and they were Mark Henderson, brother of the bride, and Clarence Throop.

A reception was held in the church youth building.

Torino...for people who know there's more to a performance car than painted stripes.

Anyone can paint stripes on a car. Ford's performance champs earn their stripes the hard way. Torino swept the first five places in the Riverside 500. It's the Pace Car for the Indy 500. It's the hottest-selling new car in the country! Fairlane took first place in its class for braking and for economy in the Union/Pure Oil Performance Trials—in fact, Ford Motor Company cars won more classes than all other manufacturers combined! If it's performance you want, ride with a winner! See the man with Better Ideas... your Ford Dealer.

FACTS ABOUT THE 1968 TORINO

When Torino takes the first five spots in the Riverside 500, first time out, you know it's tough! These cars, of course, were driven by professionals and were modified to meet the special demands of competition. But, the same kind of basic durability and maneuverability are built into every Torino we familiarize. So if you want stripes, get 'em on the car that gives them meaning! Choose from three GT models—fastback, hardtop and convertible. All with a 289-cu. in. V-8, wall-to-wall carpeting, all-vinyl interiors, styled steel wheels and wide-ovals. Or choose the regular hardtop or 4-door sedan. Like the GT's, they've got a new, longer, 116 in. wheelbase for smoother riding comfort, more room and more trunk space. You can even have a Torino Squire wagon, with 2-way Magic Doorage. See America's hottest newcar at your Ford Dealer's soon.

Holiday On Ice

Holiday on Ice will be the presentation of the 41st annual Kiwanis Benefit March 5, it was announced Saturday by Joseph H. Cole, Jr., general chairman for this year's benefit.

The yearly show, which supports the Kiwanis Club's Dental Clinic and aid project for underprivileged children, will mark the opening performance of Holiday on Ice of 1968 at the West Palm Beach Auditorium.

This year's ice spectacular, featuring a cast of 140 skaters, is the 23rd edition of the famous show. It highlights seven production numbers, including an original ballet on ice, a tumbler barnyard fantasy, a waltz ball, a West Indian scene and an explosive finale set in San Francisco at the turn of the century.

Featured skaters hail from many parts of the world.

The cost of putting Holiday on Ice together for 1968 was in excess of $1 million. It is estimated that more than 15 million spectators will see the various companies during the one-year season.

President Of The Week

The newly formed Radio Amateurs Club is in the capable hands of Richard McMillan, president of the club.

Richard was born in Belle Glade on February 11, 1950, and has lived and attended school here all his life.

Other than his office in the Radio Amateur Club, he was given the Harvard Book Award for the outstanding Junior boy and was chosen to go to Boy's State last summer.

When asked if he thought the club would continue to grow he answered, "Yes, since we have a new Electronics course, a lot more boys should be interested."

Richard's interests and hobbies include hunting, camping, and hand radios.

He hopes to attend Georgia Tech and plans to major in Electrical Engineering.

Movie Review

IF YOU WANT to see an absolutely smashing movie, go see GUESS WHO'S COMING TO DINNER. Spencer Tracy, in the final role of his career, and Katherine Hepburn are magnificent as parents who find themselves in shock when their daughter, proudly brought up as a Southerner, announces that she loves a Negro. How they react is the sum and substance of this film, traditional in style, explosive in content and made radiant by the beauty and sincerity of Tracy and Hepburn giving performances of a lifetime. Katherine Houghton and Sidney Poitier are line as the would-be marrieds, and producer-director Stanley Kramer is to be congratulated for stepping in where most other movie-makers don't dare.

The following Friday night the Rams beat Clewiston 78-58, at home. Top scorer in the game was Steve Close with 26 points. Right behind him was Roger McCray (C) with 25. Eddie McAllister scored 21 and Quen Wilson scored 14 to help with the victory. The Rams made good on over 60% of their free throws.

On Tuesday night, January 29, the Rams traveled to Naples for a Varsity game only. For this game, three junior varsity players, Charles Close, Ricky Roth, and Woody Brandon, were moved up. Clewiston won (30) for Naples paced the 82-67 win, with 25 points. Although losing, four Belle Glade players, Wilson, Rionda, Viamontes, and Steven Close scored over 10. As the clock ran out, Woody Brandon made a spectacular shot from half court to give the Rams their final 2 points.

Bible Class

Every morning for the past Semester, a group of students have been meeting in the Study Hall at 8:00 for about ten minutes, to have a Bible Class.

Johnny Williams, the leader of the class says, "Many people want to come, but are just too shy and this is silly. Everyone who comes is greeted with the utmost kindness and friendliness by all."

Some times they read a verse from the Bible and discuss what it means to each individual — and other times they bring up a "thought for the day." Like Johnny says, "everyone who comes gets a taste of good Christian ideas."

Start the day off right and come. Everyone is welcome.

Johnny Williams discusses a thought for the day with other students at a morning Bible Class.

Baby Bobcats Defeated

On Tuesday night January 30, 1968, the Mighty Bobcats journeyed to Riviera Beach to take on the I.F.K. Vikings.

The game got underway with the baby Bobcats leading the Vikings throughout the first and second quarter. Glenn Lettingham rebounded, dribbled, scored as if the court belonged to him, ending the second quarter with a score of 29-26 in favor of Lake Shore.

After the halftime, things changed, not to mention the scores, the Vikings acted as if this was a "Life or Death" game and led the Baby Bobcats during the third and fourth quarters. Winning the game with a score of 56-66 the Vikings fans cheered, and

VIKINGS WIN

After a fine game on behalf of the "B" team, the Mighty Bobcats "A" team entered.

The first quarter got underway with Curtis Edwards scoring the first four points of the game. The second quarter ended with a score of 32-26 in favor of the Bobcats.

After halftime the Curtis Edwards handling the ball to set up a well-executed play. Bobby McCawhan scored two points, then things got hot in the gym at the closing of the third quarter the Bobcats led the Vikings led a while, it was a point-for-point game.

The fourth quarter, the spectators really seemed puzzled, the game was so close that the fourth quarter ended in a tie, 62-62, so they played a 3:00 minute overtime and the Vikings pulled away from the Bobcats to win the game with a score of 65-68.

BEHAVIOR

Behavior is anything that a living creature actually does. The word often refers to acts that other persons can observe if they happen to be present. Actually, all responses and ways of acting is behavior. These include a person's thought, emotions, feelings, needs, and the responses of his muscles and glands. Singing is behavior, and so is being inspired to high ideals by listening to a lovely song. Behavior, that can be observed is called explicit behavior and the other type is known as implicit behavior.

Psychologists can change the behavior of humans and animals by a process of training. If a teacher or parent knows exactly how he wants a child to act in certain situations, he can usually train the child to do what is wanted. It is believed that if a child is trained to act respectfully, he will eventually feel respectful. There is some evidence to support this view. The child's behavior. Such factors as needs, desires, and emotions have a great deal to do with how he behaves.

Habits play a larger part in all human behavior. People usually continue doing what they are used to doing as long as they possibly can. Habit training is particularly important in babies and small children. Good behavior in very young children is almost entirely a matter of good habits. But as children grow older other factors help determine their behavior. Their interests and their desires are especially important. For adults behavior means choosing among behavior possibilities rather than merely being able to behave. This involves learning a set of values to guide behavior. For such reasons, many educators believe that the development of values judgment and intelligence in children is most important to good behavior in the long run. So let's make the best out of our behavior, it will profit in the future.

Exit The Body

Last Thursday night, February 1, the Lake Shore Playmakers Guild presented a three act farce entitled "Exit The Body."

The setting was a small New England house in the country. Somewhere there, there are some stolen diamonds and everyone seemed to be after. A writer (Sharon Butts) and her secretary (Jeanette Sears) were caught in the middle of everything.

The sweet, poor, country maid (Ethel Lockett) and Lyle (Rodney Reynolds) were two friends of Crane who got married in Mexico. They wanted everything kept mum until she got her divorce so Lyle pretended to be Crane's husband.

In popped Richard (Levon Wilford), Crane's husband. He knew the least about the most complicated. Lillian (Elmira Putman) and Lyle (Rodney Reynolds) were two friends of Crane who got married in Mexico. They wanted everything kept mum until she got her divorce so Lyle pretended to be Crane's husband.

Dandruff Is A Problem

Q. I hate to stand in front of someone at school when I am wearing a dark sweater. I know that there's a whole case of dandruff showing on my shoulder. Is there anything I can do?

A. There's absolutely no excuse for sinking around self-consciously because of dandruff. Today, there are many good shampoos for this. All you have to do is go to your nearest drugstore or toiletries counter in a department store and ask the salesperson to show you the shampoo prepared for just this problem. Again read everything the directions say and then choose the one you think would help you. Don't give up if the first one you choose doesn't work for you try another one next time, and don't believe those people who post these special shampoos. They are great for dandruff problems, and one of them will solve yours. What might be the one for your best friend may not be the one for you. But you can be sure that there is one. Don't put it off. Dandruff can do far more than embarrass you in a life—it can play real havoc with your complexion too. So now is the time since you don't mention any skin problem to nip the dandruff problem in the bud.

NAM Supports Plan Urging Aid In Job Creation

In a recent telegram to President Johnson, Chairman of the Board Guy S. Peplatt of the National Association of Manufacturers expressed the Association's "great interest" in Mr. Johnson's proposal to attack hard core unemployment in cities and rural areas through increased involvement of private enterprise.

The telegram read: "The National Association of Manufacturers notes with great interest the emphasis placed in yesterday's announcement on securing greater involvement of private industry in attacking the problems of the cities and rural areas by creating new job opportunities. We look forward to discussion of the specifics with Secretary Torridge at the earliest possible date and wish also to commend your decision to coordinate attack of these problems through the Department of Commerce. This promises to direct the program to a fast start. The National Association of Manufacturers has concentrated much time and attention upon the twin problems of job training and job creating. We will be happy to make this knowledge and experience available to Mr. Zisch."

William E. Zisch, Vice Chairman of Arcojet-General Corporation, has been designated by the President to head the program, which consolidates funds from several existing programs in a "one stop" approach to setting-up industries in blighted areas.
